

Karv

Karv is meant to read like an inverted topography or an outcropping of stone carved from the elements over millennia. This sculptural table is engineered to cantilever to its maximum limit, and the entire composition is calibrated based on weight and material properties. This expressive form of deep grooves and sedimentary layers pushes both the limits of the 3D printed molds and concrete fabrication and makes a dramatic imprint on any space.